6-zones of advanced, customizable support

Your body doesn't feel the same every day, neither should your bed! On an AirTouch Mattress you can adjust your side of the bed to the exact firmness level feel you want... even if that changes from day to day. Each side of the bed features three independent support zones to provide complete customization options that won't disturb your partner. Setting different levels of firmness for each part of your body can help to relieve neck or back aches, leg cramps or even sore feet. Our programmable controller also features a convenient memory button so you can return to your ideal settings anytime.

Reduced motion transfer for peaceful sleep

On an AirTouch mattress, no matter how much your partner tosses and turns you will be at peace in your own comfort zone. Our exclusive Transition Cushion (rail in middle) assures that you will not feel motion transfer or any comfort void, no matter where on the bed you rest. Plus, the perimeter rail design adds extra stability, expands the usable sleep surface and provides a firm seating edge.

Quality construction for peace of mind

The air cells inside the mattress are made using hospital grade, antimicrobial material. The unique full tube i-beam construction is bonded at the molecular level to provide durability that far surpasses other air mattresses. We also use high density polyurethane side rails, imported fabric covers and premium upholstery materials to assure that you enjoy years of quality sleep.
