everyone needs some support...

Visco-elastic foam was developed for NASA to cushion and support astronauts from the intense pull of gravity during launch. Today, that same technology is in every MemoryTouch™ mattress. This unique material responds to your body heat, creating a perfect cradle of support that keeps your spine properly aligned throughout the night.

...and a little pressure relief

When you lie down on a MemoryTouch mattress, the foam slowly conforms to every contour of your body, distributing your weight evenly across the sleep surface. Reducing pressure eliminates the restlessness that disrupts a good night's sleep, and increases circulation to tired, aching muscles.

you'll love how you feel every day

With a MemoryTouch mattress, you'll wake up free of pain caused by insufficient back support. You'll feel more refreshed because the unique low-pressure sleep surface allows you to sleep deeper and dream longer. Independent research has proven that sleeping on a bed which reduces pressure points improves the quality of sleep, and consequently increases mental acuity, energy levels, and well being.
